

'EAST MOVES WEST' — IS PROM THEME

The McGill Prom, featuring Blake Sewell and the Varsity Orchestra, will be held on Friday evening, December 2, in the Currie Gym.

In keeping with the theme of this year's Prom, "East moves West", decorations will be in an oriental motif. Students of the School of Architecture are planning these decorations.

Favours

It has been announced that favours will be given out to the girls attending the Prom.

Two Orchestras

The two orchestras will be on separate bandstands and will supply continuous music for dancing. They will play from a planned schedule of numbers, and both bands will consist of seventeen pieces each.

Included in the price of the tickets, $5 a couple, will be free mixers and ice. A new feature in the set-up of the table pattern will be round tables to provide easier facilities for relaxation and conversation.

Patrons

Patrons for the Prom will be Chancellor and Mrs. B. C. Gardner, Dr. and Mrs. F. Cyril James, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McConnell, Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Stewart, and Dr. Muriel V. Roscoe.

The Prom Committee urges you to make your table reservations as quickly as possible in order that you will have suitable accommodation at the dance. Reservations may be made with George Easdon at PL. 7412 or WI. 6553.

IAN HUNTER GUEST SPEAKER FOR FRIDAY

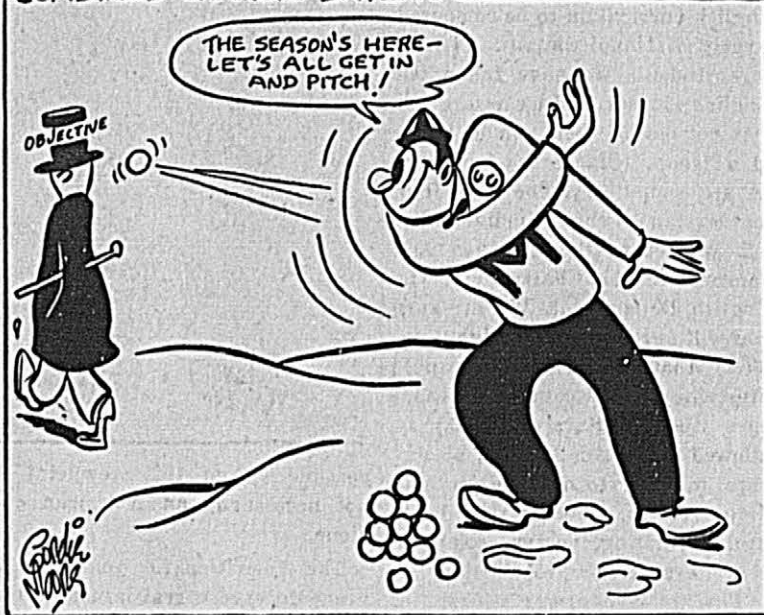

Ian Hunter, former artistic director of the Edinburgh Festival, will be the guest speaker Friday, Nov. 25 in the 1955-56 lecture series given by the Conservatorium of Music. He will speak on "Virtuosi In Harness, starting at 8:30 pm, in Moyse Hall.

Mr. Hunter recently accepted an invitation from an Ottawa committee to study the possibility of setting up a great international festival of the arts in that city. During his stay, Mr. Hunter and his wife stayed at Government House. The Governor General is honorary chairman of the committee.

PLUMBERS' BALL COMMITTEE

There will be an important meeting of the Committee this afternoon at 1 pm in Room 300 of the Engineering Building. Ruth Fenton, Anita Rasmussen, Jim Biggs, Bob Wahlstrom, Don Rae, Steve Sura, Dan Wainberg, and Abbott are asked to attend.

COMBINED CHARLIE SAYS...

FIRST PLAYERS' CLUB EXPERIMENTALS TONITE

Tonight at 8.30 in the Walter M. Stewart Room of the McGill Union the Players Club will hold its first evening of experimentals. A second performance will be held on Friday.

Four plays will be presented to the campus, and the whole show will last approximately one and a half hours. As the Club is financed directly by the S.E.C. there will be no admission charge.

Ambitious

This year's show of experimentals is intended to be more ambitious than in past years.

In an interview with Mr. Bell the producer of the group of plays, it was leaved that the Stewart room, where they are to be performed, will be arranged to seat 150 people in comfortable chairs. He said that the arena stage and lighting system will be set up, and that he hopes the sets will be of a high standard. In order to stretch their budget the Players Club have been able to borrow some furniture from Eatons, and make some of it themselves.

Tuesday

On Tuesday evening, during Mrs. Springford's acting class, a discussion about the experimentals will

FLYING CARPET ANNOUNCES THEME

The Flying Carpet committee, under the chairmanship of Al Goodings, has announced the theme of this year's show "Flying Saucers."

With this as basis the committee is working to produce a colourful variety of entertainment. The producer is Al Goodings; Walter Zavadell is directing, with John Wickenden as assistant. Dick Avison is in charge of technical direction. Jim Hirayama and Brian Johnson are managing publicity.

Tickets will be available in the main buildings of the Campus by December 3. They will also be sold at the door during the run of the show, which runs from December 7-10.

All proceeds, after deduction of expenses, will be added to the capital which is to be used to build a house for the use of students of all nationalities.

be inaugurated. It is hope that as many people as possible will participate in this. The Players Club stated "We feel that this type of discussion is of very great importance if we are to continue to improve the standard of plays on the campus."

Different

Each of the one act plays to be presented has a different director. J. L. Yalkut, who has a great deal of experience in theatre, and who has actually written one of the plays, is directing "Ario da Capo" by Edna St. Vincent Millay. Dan Kraslovsky is directing "Ile" by Eugene O'Neil. The third full length one act play is directed by George Shafer. In addition Robert Bell is himself directing a very short play called "Thoughts on the Practicality of Thoughts".

In a press release issued to the Daily this evening the Players Club "The programme which we are presenting will be both entertaining and of great interest to all students. We sincerely hope that there will be enough room to seat everyone, and we ask you to come well on time to avoid any last minute crowding.

COMBINED CHARLIE TO AID LOCAL CHARITIES

Fifty per cent of the funds raised in the combined Charities Campaign will go to four local charities. Two of these are the Combined Jewish Appeal and the Federation of Catholic Charities.

Among the services supported by the Combined Jewish Appeal is the Jewish Child Welfare Bureau which builds a foundation for tomorrow's citizens through a variety of child welfare facilities.

Health Services

Another service is the Herzl

Health Centre which gives medical examinations, dental care, patch tests, X-rays, inoculations and vaccinations to some 5,306 persons. Others are the Baron de Hirsch Institute, Neighbourhood House, Camp Wooden Acres, the Jewish Vocational Service, the Montreal Old People's Home, the Mount Sinai Sanatorium and the Jewish Mental Health Service.

The Federation of Catholic charities serves the needs of the English-speaking Catholics of Montreal. The Federation is now in its 25th year of operation and supports 24 direct agencies and eight services with the funds raised annually from the general public.

Wide Range

Over 27,000 individuals were aided in 1954. Every dollar is divided among the eight services and of these, Family Welfare receives 37.8% Child Care 29.9%, Youth Services 7.8% and Care of the Aged 7.7%.

The annual campaigns of the four great charity federations are more than fund-raising efforts for the assistance of needy members of the community. They contribute towards the security and stature of the entire population of Montreal. It is literally true that every human being within the radius of the influence of this campaign benefits directly or indirectly because of their work.

OUTING CLUB PLANS NIGHT

A general Night has been planned by the McGill Outing Club to take place on Friday, December 9. All members of MOC are invited to come and bring a friend. Supper will be served and entertainment and a square dance will follow.

Ski lessons will be given to McGill students starting on January 8 for a period of six weeks. The lessons, valued at $16 each, will be given free. MOC may sponsor, at the conclusion of the lessons, further instruction on the higher slopes.

RED AND WHITE

REVUE CASTING

Casting for singers for the Red and White Revue will continue today from 7-10 pm in the Union Lounge and tomorrow from 1-3 pm in the Union Ballroom.

BACKSTAGE

All those interested in working with the Revue in a technical capacity are asked to attend a meeting from 1-2 pm in the Revue offices in the Union basement tomorrow.

The technical aspects of the show include costuming, set building, make-up and other backstage operations, including props and lighting. No previous experience is required.

CHAPUT CASE

On Tuesday, November 16, the Supreme Court of Canada passed a judgment against certain police officers who had disturbed a private religious ceremony. Most important, this judgment ruled in favour of the right of freedom of religious belief; in favour of the right of the Jehovah's Witnesses to engage in private worship.

In September 1949 about 40 Witnesses of Jehovah gathered for worship in a private residence. Three Provincial Police officers of the Quebec force entered the house and asked if a service was being held. They were told readily that there was. They then asked permission to attend, this was immediately granted.

The policemen stood watching the service for several minutes while the preacher read the Bible. Then the preacher was asked to discontinue the service and the police seized his Bible and some other pamphlets. The meeting was immediately brought to a close and everyone left quietly without demonstration.

The owner of the house in which the meeting was held brought suit.

One aspect of the Court's decision refers to the right of free worship. In this judgment, Mr. Justice Taschereau writes "All religions are on an equal footing . . . and enjoy the most complete liberty of thought. The conscience of each is a personal matter . . . It would be distressing to think that a majority might impose its religious views upon a minority." In this decision, Mr. Justice Taschereau relies on no text of law. The Court, then, assumes the inherent right of religious freedom. It can therefore be expected that the Court will follow the same line of reasoning in any future cases involving civil liberties. The United States has a Bill of Rights which guarantees civil liberties under the Constitution. Canada has no such declaration. This Supreme Court decision may become part of a series of judgments which will insure a parallel guarantee in Canada. In this sense the decision is of vital importance.

It should be noted, however, that the judgment should not be taken as giving to the minority the licence to libel the majority. Let each respect the position of the other. Canada is federal in its make-up. Its federalism has two aspects: the purely geographical division and the bicultural French-English division. There are many other races and creeds represented in Canada. Mutual goodwill and respect among these divergent groupings is a vital necessity in the preservation of a free and federal state.

A BIRTHDAY

On November 25, 1954, Mr. Dick Purser, then the Managing Editor of the Daily, welcomed a new publication to campus. The publication was the Fig Leaf, a campus humour magazine conceived to fill the gap left by the old Floating Rib and born, perhaps a less lusty, but better behaved infant.

Mr. Purser said, "It is as yet a small magazine, but with support it will grow."

The Fig Leaf has had support, and it has grown. Today is the Fig Leaf's very first birthday. There is no doubt that the brat has promise. He has reached the age when his small fingers can just stretch out and grasp hold of things. Perhaps he cannot always retain them. He is a toddler. His steps are small and uncertain and we can still detect a certain waver in his gait.

Everyone loves a baby, but such a child as this must grow up more quickly than most. If he is to survive he will be permitted no adolescence.

The brat has grown very rapidly. Next year he must be secure in his place as a mature university publication. Then he will be a man.

Happy Birthday, Fig Leaf, and many more of them.

No Snap Courses

Sir:

We were most interested to read that you consider the Honours English curriculum to be composed largely of 'snap' courses. As honours students we have taken ten English courses, and we assure you that not one of them can be termed a "snap." Six of the ten courses are compulsory. The other four courses can be chosen individually, but subject to the direction and approval of the Chairman of the English Department. We are sure you will agree that it is highly unlikely that the Chairman would prescribe "snap" courses for honours students. Surely we may be allowed some small scope, at any rate, in order to develop our individual tastes, whether they be in drama, writing, poetry, comparative literature, or prose history.

The six compulsory courses of the Honours curriculum consist of a study of English literature from the fourteenth to the twentieth centuries. In each course the student must obtain at least a good second class. To write a general examination based on courses in which one has achieved a good second class seems unnecessary, especially in one's fourth year, when the work is particularly onerous.

On what authority do you base your dogmatic assertion? We have not, to our knowledge, seen the Editor-in-Chief, the Managing Editor, or the Executive Editor of the McGill Daily in any of our specially prescribed Honours classes. Doubtless they are fully occupied in seeking "snap" courses, since they seem so self-assured about that particular category. However this, we admit, is excusable, since they must devote their intellectual energies and talents to the production of the McGill Daily.

Sour Grapes

Sir:

In regard to an article and an editorial about the recent skirmish with the hostiles across the border in Burlington (Daily, Nov. 21), we are afraid you must admit that your attitude smacks of "sour grapes".

Does it not seem that your problem essentially boils down to a distinction between rhetoric and debate? No doubt the McGill team is highly skilled in rhetoric; why then does not McGill form a Rhetoric Society and enter competitions in this field which may well have more appeal for many? There is sure to be ample opportunity to engage in competition with similar societies in other universities, including American ones.

Debating, far from being a mere test of oratorical prowess, is in essence "coming to grips" with an issue, and, in fact, with a view to solving it. Indeed, one can scarcely say he has come to grips with an issue without having dealt with as much factual evidence as possible. And this viewpoint is not necessarily an American one alone.

The Americans, as you say, are prone to choose real issues of national and international impact, and to inspect them at times minutely. In so doing, a student may gain rather considerable insight into the roots of the problem. And in so doing, he is in truth practising one of the more commendable precepts of democracy. There is some sort of theory about individual responsibility going along with liberty; you may have heard of this before.

A university is supposed to be a place where one does more than fritter around the fringes of learning. The undergraduate is expected to plunge deeply into issues, and characteristically does this with a plethora of enthusiasm. It is here, however that he learns how deep the depths are, and it is generally hoped he will not recoil completely from them in his first horror.

In the United States, as in other countries, many students go to college mainly or partially to become better citizens; this can be just as serious as one wishes to make it, and if some occasionally overdo it we should not be too critical, for the majority falls far short of overdoing it.

Besides, there is a chance that if you listen closely enough you will be gratified by a bit of humor and even just possibly by skilled oratory in U.S. debates. The country is not exactly noted for its dourness. And even down

Westies Bring Touch Laurels To Arts And Science

By Don Bell

The show must go on.

And the show did go on yesterday afternoon as the Westies from Arts and Science blanked the Apes from Engineering 9-0 to sweep touch football honors for the 1955 campaign.

The game was played in a snow covered Molson Stadium that would discourage the stoutest football heart. The contestants wore a special type of football cleat built for such a sloshy occasion and supplied through the courtesy of the sports department. After the game the Westies didn't mind the snow and mud, but the Apes wished that they had stayed at home.

The Westies roared into a 3-0 lead in the first half, notching a safety touch and a rouge, and from there on they never looked back. A second half major by Dave Waugh cemented the victory.

Brian Powell enabled the Westies to jump in the lead when his hoist landed in the Apes' end zone. The Apes' punt returner was hemmed in behind his goal line and the Westies forged into a 1-0 lead on the rouge. A few minutes later McDougall of the Westies received credit for a safety touch when he nailed an Engineer who decided to venture too far beyond his own goal line. The half ended with the count, Westies 3, Apes 0.

In the second half, Dave Waugh of the Westies culminated a field long drive when he dashed around end for a touchdown. The Apes launched a devastating aerial and ground attack in an effort to appear on the scoresheet, but the brick wall defense of the Westies prevented the goose-egg from being broken.

Touch Football Challenge Issued

Assuming that we are truly "civic" in nature and not afraid to accept the challenge of the miners, we the civils of 4M have nervously dared to accept the powerful challenge of the miners 4M. Since civils were thoroughly clobbered by Med. 3 in the Intramural playoffs, the playing date has been moved ahead. We will play at 1 pm today at the stadium. All arrangements must be made by the challengers.

director, labelled the brand of ball as the best he had seen all season. "The game was fast and exciting", Howie said. "The boys played their hearts out and certainly deserve every bit of mention they get." ...The Westies may well be proud of the fact that they defeated last year's co-holders of the title. Last season the Apes and Med II shared honors in a unique settlement. They met in the finals and played a 6-6 tie. The next day they were at it again and played another 6-6 tie. It was finally realized that if they weren't both crowned champs, they might be playing football all winter. The sports department unanimously voted for the two teams to share the coveted title. They did just that and yesterday the last of the 1954 champions, the Apes, went down to defeat.

This season closes on one particularly happy note. It was the most successful touch football season ever recorded in the annals of McGill's sports history. More teams and more players participated than ever before, which indicates a very bright future for this sport.

POLO TEAM WINS 13-3 INTERS LOSE TO YMHA

The McGill water polo team broke into the win column last night as the Redmen trounced Concordia-Hogan 13-3. Bernie Toporowski led the Red and White crew with five goals while Charlie Evelyn and Fred Weinstein scored three each.

Barry Thompson's boys went ahead 4-0 in the first quarter on goals by Evelyn, Weinstein and two by Toporowski. "Topper" added two more in the second stanza and Weinstein scored one. Phoenix scored for Concordia to make the half-time score 7-1.

Toporowski, Weinstein, Ed Ad-

elson and Rod Roy each scored one goal in the second half and Evelyn added two to make the final score 13-3. The Redmen had four goals called back due to minor infractions. Concordia was well beaten by the McGill squad, but more careful play would have resulted in a much higher score for the Redmen.

An undermanned and inexperienced intermediate squad lost to the Davis Y.M.H.A. Blues 11-3 in the first game played last night. Leon Jacobovits and George Easdon with two were the marksmen for the inters.
